ALPHA APPOINTS METLIFE'S ED PALMER AS CIO

Alpha Real Capital ("Alpha"), the specialist manager of secure income real assets, has announced the appointment of Ed Palmer as Chief Investment Officer.

Over a period of 14 years with MetLife, one of the world's largest insurance groups, Ed was previously CIO EMEA where he was responsible for leading the EMEA HQ with around 60 people and approximately £10billion equivalent of AUM across public and private credit, infrastructure and real estate.

With a career spanning two and a half decades, Ed has extensive experience of real assets, credit and risk management and has worked at leading investment organisations including MetLife, Barclays Investment Bank and rating agency Moody's.

Ed Palmer, CIO, Alpha Real Capital said: "I am delighted to be joining Alpha Real Capital. Alpha's strong focus on real assets such as ground rents, social infrastructure and renewable energy provides a particularly attractive mix of investment strategies for investors".

Phillip Rose, CEO at Alpha Real Capital said: "Reflecting the strong growth of the Alpha business, which has doubled in recent years, Ed's appointment continues the deepening of the Alpha management team and its focus on credit and risk and follows recent senior appointments including Director of Investment Risk, Director of CDI and Head of Client Solutions. Ed's understanding of real assets, credit, and risk will make an important contribution to our growth as a leading provider of secure income solutions for UK and European investors".
